It includes a complete front end replacement, interior and wheel covers. This is NOT related to the DLC and has the same engine specifications. Exterior: When the model was first released the front was a bit unfinished and the bridge was not clear. I've been playing a lot of GTA V lately and I stumbled across something I think might be better than a Rockstar enhanced car. I play the Eiger in the game. It's officially an Enhanced Vehicle in the moddb, but it is in the Rockstar Nexus in the images and the description. So I'm going to share with you the car that I think is better than the Eiger. Here's the first impression of the car in-game: So let's compare the base model of the Eiger with the GTA V model. This is the Eiger in-game: The GTA V Eiger: While the base model of the Eiger is the only car with I've tested, the GTA V Eiger has a few small changes, for example if you turn the steering wheel, it can rotate up to 180 degrees (I forgot how to do this in-game, but it was a cool feature to see). The little things are more like the differences between two cars in the same model range (for example, the Eiger is a 2014 model, while the GTA V Eiger is a 2013 model), but there are also some major differences. Of course the Rockstar Nexus version is better than the base model from the mod DB, but in a few places it's also worse.

Lots of features and very comfortable. by Rash from Greenville March 30, 2013 Excellent car; happy with Honda. I love the location and exterior styling. This car has a whopping 37/41MPG city/Hwy so the little hybrid engine is not very thirsty. It's seating for two is large and comfortable. There are many extras like a 110v AC outlet, bluetooth, DVD, etc. Did not like that it has no traction or stability control. Lots of equipment but not a great safety car in terms of being able to control the vehicle in snow and ice. but for the money it's an excellent car. Would buy again. by Katie from Atlanta
