Because the county is so small, for most people it is hard to believe it is in the UK. The area is known as a very gentle county, not as a county with hills. The only really famous tourist place is at Bourn Station in the market town of Cambridge which has been made famous by the famous book called 'The Lord of the Rings'. Cambridge is a very historic city on the River Cam. In the centre of Cambridge is the old part of the city dating back from the fourteenth century. The university of Cambridge is a university based on five faculties, which are the lifeblood of any university. The main universities are part of the University of Cambridge, which provide a main lecture hall, Bodleian Library, administrative office, and staff who look after the libraries and studying for the students. The five universities are called the colleges, which are small administrative areas with an undergraduate population of about 300 students. Cambridge has a well kept centre with a collection of historic buildings. For visitors who enjoy history, Cambridge should be top of the list. In the north of Cambridgeshire, in the town of Peterborough is the cathedral of Peterborough. This cathedral is a UNESCO designated World Heritage site. It is one of the most important cathedrals in Europe, and one of the largest cathedrals in England. It has a simple, elegant design to it. It can easily be seen from a long way off. This church was built between 1839 and 1841, and has 10,000 seats inside. It is said that in 1334, three cathedrals were founded in England by William Boniface, the last heir to the Duchy of Lancaster. The reason is because he believed that a cathedral should be the place where the people would get their first impressions of the divine.
